PROSPECTUS.

THREE months ago a company was formed in Sydney for the purpose, amongst others, of purchasing and working a Rich Quartz Vein discovered in the neighbourhood of the Lower Turon. Arrangements were at once made for dispatching competent persons to ascertain and report on the richness of the claim. These reports were sufficiently satisfactory to induce the Provisional Committee to conclude on their own responsibility the negociation then on foot with the original claimants, and the vein became duly transferred to, and is now held by, trustees on behalf of this Company, which was originally composed of a few individuals, under the impression that a limited capital would be sufficient to work the mine. A Deed of Settlement, as prepared by the Solicitors of the Company, was submitted to a general meeting of the Shareholders, adopted and signed, appointing the above-named gentlemen first Directors of the Company.

It is unnecessary to enter into detail respecting the subsequent acts of the directors. Suffice it to say that every week has added to the evidence they possessed of the amazing richness of this mine. Portions of the quartz, selected indiscriminately from the ridge, having been forwarded to Sydney and tested by practical assayers, have yielded gold to an extent which has not only startled the Directors, but which, if published, would scarcely be credited.

Independently of the facts brought under the directors' notice by their own experiments, disinterested parties have spoken of this Claim in the highest terms, and the Assistant Gold Commissioner gives his opinion of its value in the strongest language, in his original report on the subject to the Chief Gold Commissioner.

In the early part of last month, the directors were fortunate enough to secure the services of a gentleman lately arrived from Mexico, where he had been engaged for many years in mining pursuits, with whom they entered into an arrangement to proceed to the Turon, survey and report on the auriferous Quartz Vein on the Company's Claim, and the best mode of working the same. This gentleman has returned to town, and his report fully confirms previous statements. He excavated nine feet, and quarried out a block of quartz so large that it cannot, in the present state of the roads, be conveyed to Sydney, bearing indications of gold as rich as previous samples, which yielded at the rate of £1400 sterling per ton. The character of the quartz upon this claim is of the best description, being thoroughly impregnated with gold, and so equally distributed as to be perceptible to the naked eye on all sides, but when brought under the influence of a powerful lens, it is found to pervade the whole mass. From the report of this gentleman and information obtained at frequent interviews, the Directors have satisfied themselves the present capital of the Company is not sufficient for the proper working of this mine; and as they have been frequently applied to for shares, which they could not supply, a meeting of the Company was held at the Royal Hotel on Thursday, the 23rd instant. When it was resolved—

"To increase the capital of the Company to 40,000 shares of 20s. each, and to offer 20,000 shares to the public for sale; such offer only to remain open one month, at the expiration of which the shares unapplied for to be appropriated as the Directors may decide."

In accordance with the above resolution, the public are invited to apply for any portion of the 20,000 shares now offered for sale.

The declared objects of the Company are—

To extract gold from quartz veins,
To work alluvial soil,
To purchase gold.

Towards the first of these objects they possess the rich vein already alluded to, and have the first claim to two others adjoining, making in all one mile and a half of quartz.

The second of these objects is not engaging their attention at present.

The third object they are already acting upon, so that the capital of the Company may never be unproductive.

Application is being made to the Legislative Council for an Act to limit the liability of the shareholders.

It will be seen by the above that the Directors are quite alive to the importance of employing the capital of the Company, at the same time fully resolved to expend it judiciously and economically. Further particulars may be ascertained from any of the Directors, and parties desirous of obtaining shares are requested to make early application: they will be required to pay a deposit of 5s. per share as soon as the shares are allotted, and the balance whenever the calls are made.

The Deed of Settlement lies at the office of the Solicitors to the Company, where it may be inspected.

FORM OF APPLICATION FOR SHARES to be addressed to the office of Samuel Hebblewhite, Esq., Hon. Sec., next door to the Town Hall, York-street.

To the Board of Directors of the Turon Golden Ridge Quartz Crushing Company.

It is needless for the importers to say any thing in favour of the above, as their superiority over every other description of safe has been for some time thoroughly established. No insurance can possibly cover the loss occasioned by account books or valuable papers being destroyed by fire.

But numerous certificates have been received from bankers, solicitors, and merchants, whose premises have been reduced to ashes by fire, testifying that all their valuable papers and books, which were secured in Milner's patent fire-proof safes, were preserved, amidst the ruins, uninjured.

They also being made of strong hammered plate iron, most effectively resist any attempt to open them by violence.

The present shipment are Milner's best made articles, with very superior locks, and two keys.

Dear Sir,—We, the undersigned steerage passengers from Melbourne to Sydney, beg to express our appreciation of your attention to us during our passage; regulations on board, as far as you are connected, met with our utmost thanks.

Wishing you all prosperity and happiness,
We remain, Sir, your obedient servants,
(Signed by 38 Passengers.)

Gentlemen,—In answer to an advertisement which appeared in the Melbourne Morning Herald of the 20th instant, in answer to an address presented to Mr. A. W. Lyons, signed A Seaman: I am perfectly astonished that any one bearing the colours of a sailor should be ashamed of his name. I and several of the passengers are now returning in the Waratah, and fully contradict the assertion. Whoever gave the orders, Mr. Lyons afflicted them with a courtesy that does him credit.

I am happy in again seeing my fellow-passengers again presenting him with an address.

As I do not wish to go under false colours,
I remain, gentlemen, an honest man, but not a seaman—a passenger,
JAMES M'CROSSEN.

VACCINATION.

With the opening of the summer, and with the prospect of a large and continuous flow of immigration to our shores, we feel that we are doing an acceptable service in reminding parents and guardians of the ready means made available for them by the local Government with respect to the vaccination of their children. We are enabled to state, that a very fine supply of lymph is now in possession of Dr. Rutter, who attends at the Vaccine Institution, in Bent-street, every Monday and Friday, between two and four o'clock, to vaccinate, free of charge. We are glad to learn that a great number of children are vaccinated every week, and we know that the Government, by periodical advertisements, use every pains to apprise parents of the means afforded to them of taking this sure precaution against a malignant disease; but as this is a point to which universal attention ought to be instantly directed, we do not think it supererogatory to remind our readers throughout the colony, especially new arrivals, ignorant of our local institutions, of the existence of the excellent establishment in Bent-street.

So plentiful has been the supply of late of lymph in the care of Dr. Rutter, that, in addition to the supply which he has been enabled to forward to medical practioners in the country districts of this colony, he has sent a most acceptable quantity to Melbourne.

THE NORTHERN GOLD DIGGINGS OF NEW SOUTH WALES.

(From our Special Reporter.)

At a very early period of what may be called the Gold Era in Australia the inhabitants of different localities of the colony, inspired by the sudden discovery of prodigious wealth at Ophir, commenced a vigorous and determined search for the precious metal in their respective districts.

The immediate vicinity of the spot where the first discovery was made of course, at the outset, attracted the largest share of attention, but when it was pronounced certain that gold was not confined to isolated localities, but prevailed to a greater or less degree in all the waters and all the ranges of the western district, it became matter of larger speculation how far the same good fortune might extend to other great divisions of the colony.

The wonderful success of the diggers at the Turon, the surprising richness of many of its tributary creeks, the almost uniform distinctness of the indications of the presence of gold, and the certainty of discovering it where these indications presented themselves, excited the hopes, the jealousies, the envy, and the alarm of the residents in other districts. Nor was the alarm a needless one; no doubt, had these districts been enabled to prosecute with double energy the known resources they possessed, they might have gone on prospering in spite of the gold fields of the west. But the attractions of these fields soon began to evince themselves. Population in masses soon began to leave remote localities to press their fortunes in the pursuit of gold, and industrial pursuits seemed in many districts on the point of coming to an absolute stoppage, if some counteracting influence were not discovered, and brought to bear in their favour.

Under circumstances such as these it became a course of prudence, if not of absolute necessity, for every district to look out for itself; and consequently meetings of the most influential and deeply interested inhabitants of the various localities were called, and large rewards were offered for the discovery of workable gold fields.

The result of this stimulus to gold enterprise was, in the first instance, successful in the southern district; and the Araluen for a time seemed to rival the Turon, while Bell's and Major's Creeks vied with the glories of the Louisa and Meroo.

The certainty of existing rich and permanent gold fields in the southern and western districts of the colony seemed but to give new energy to the inhabitants of the great northern district, and the magnitude of the interests involved gave additional stimulus to the efforts made.

Without wishing to detract from any particular portion of the colony, there can be but little doubt that, as a productive district, that of the Hunter and its tributary streams, is proudly pre-eminent. The extent of land already under cultivation, the richness of its soil, its numerous population, its thriving villages and towns, and the almost inexhaustible capabilities both of pasturage and agriculture, which the great back country of New England affords,—all tend to give it great prominence in its influence on the most valuable interests of this colony.

But the extension of the gold discovery in almost every direction, the unequalled wealth of the Victoria mines, the steady success of the diggers who remained at the Louisa, seemed to threaten this noble district with destruction. The glittering bait began to prove too attractive, and the emigration of a large number of the working population has been already felt severely.

At various times the rewards offered by the Committee formed at Maitland, for the promotion of the gold discovery in the Hunter River district, seemed to have led to the wished for result, and several samples of gold were sent in, stated to have been discovered at the various localities.

To three of these localities, Mr. Hargraves, the original discoverer of gold in the colony, and Prospector-General in the service of the Government, was despatched in February last, with instructions to report not only as to the character of these localities, but also as to the probability of gold being discovered throughout the northern district.

Previously to this however it had been ascertained that gold did exist in the gulleys and ranges to the north, although very considerable doubt existed as to it being found in sufficient quantity to pay for working.

The report of Mr. Hargraves respecting the spots where gold was stated to be found in the first instance, namely, "Swamp Oak Creek and Moonbi Creek," was unfavourable, although gold in small quantities was found at the former.

Subsequent investigation, however, has tended to confirm the opinion that the banks and bed of the Peel River, and all its numerous tributaries, are the site of a rich and extensive gold field.

Swamp Oak and Moonbi Creek, are both tributaries of the Peel as also are the Oakey Creek, at the Hanging Rock, and Oakenville Creek, seven miles further up the river.

The first gold was discovered at the Hanging Rock in January last, and was reported on by Mr. Commissioner Durbin on the 20th January. The parties who first went to the Hanging Rock worked with moderate success, obtaining with rude implements about a quarter of an ounce per man each day.

The reputation of these diggings has, however, since been rapidly increasing, and they soon became the main resort of the diggers in the north, and many parties made very large gains. The number of licenses taken out for these diggings and those on the Peel was in the month of April 188, in May 223, and in June 210. An escort has been established once a fortnight, and the amount of gold transmitted for some weeks past has been very considerable.

To these diggings, therefore, as the head quarters of the northern gold seekers, I have in the first instance directed my attention, and I now proceed to give you some account of

The Hanging Rock.

Like all other matters connected with the northern diggings the road to these diggings has been very much misunderstood and misrepresented. At Sydney and at Maitland it was represented to be about forty-five miles from the Page River, whereas it is at least fifty. The nearest direct road is by a by-road from Aberdeen between Muswellbrook and Scone, over a pass called Crany's, and this no doubt will, if the diggings continue to be largely frequented, be the great road to the Rock. To travellers, however, unaccustomed to the bush, this route at present offers difficulties, and a large number of persons proceed to Murrurundi, and from thence to Kerney's Inn on the road. By turning off there, by Mr. Lowder's station, a considerable distance may be saved—but pursuing the high road the way is to Nelson's, then to Currububula, and so on to Goonoo Goonoo, the head station of the Australian Agricultural Company. From this station on to the Hanging Rock is about 27 miles, making the whole distance from Murrurundi about 80 miles. The whole of this country is extremely hilly, and in wet weather the numerous creeks present an impassable barrier to the traveller. Accommodation too is very difficult to be found on the road, the hospitality of the superintendents, shepherds, and hutkeepers, having been severely tried by the claims of the numerous wayfarers to the diggings. It is, however, but just to say that the means of this class are eked out to the utmost extent to provide for the wants of all who may apply to them, and that it is with the greatest reluctance that they are now compelled to accept remuneration almost forced upon them.

It is no part of my object in this series of papers to describe the scenery and adventures by the way, but I may properly say that the direct approach on to the Hanging Rock is over a series of precipitous ascents, more trying to man and beasts than any I remember to have seen or read of in any part of the world. There is, indeed, a bridle track by which many difficulties may be obviated, but wishing to put myself in full possession of the position of this gold region, I kept the main road. When I went up the weather was fine and the road comparatively smooth, but the precipices were so abrupt and tremendous as almost to startle one from the attempt to proceed. The Hanging Rock is a prodigious mountain, the sides of which are overhung with huge masses of rock, which seem waiting only for some internal convulsion to be precipitated into the yawning gullies beneath. Neither in its name nor in its appearance (except in regard to size) is it peculiar. In the ranges of this district—in the Marulan Range—I noticed one similar peak much more picturesque, from the natural distribution of the rock bearing almost a castellated appearance, but less grand on account of its inferior altitude. The herbage on the rock, despite of the moisture of the season, is scant and bare, and it is with difficulty that horses and cattle are provided with a subsistence.

Descending over the ridge which shadows what is called the Rock, you arrive at what are called the "Hanging Rock Creek" and the Swamp Diggings. I went carefully through these diggings, and although the weather had for several days past been finer and warmer than had been known for months in the locality, the flush of waters was much too great to afford the diggers any thing like a favorable chance. The consequence was that many parties were absolutely doing nothing but still [illegible] the richness of their claims if the weather should give them an opportunity of working them. Others were making a bare living, and some, perhaps a fair average half, about ten shillings a day. There were three or four other parties doing much better. One party took while I was at the Rock, twelve and a quarter ounces in one day, including a nugget of seven and a quarter ounces. Another party took thirty ounces in one week, and had every probability of continued success. Several extensive new claims were being opened, and those diggers who were prevented by the weather from working their claims were either employed with the prospecting pan, or in forming those works which would advantage their proceedings when a more favourable season should occur.

The general impression among the diggers is that these diggings will prove very rich as soon as the fine weather sets in and they have a fair opportunity of working their claims, and even now, according to the number of the diggers, a very considerable amount of gold is turned up. I should estimate the number of diggers on this creek at about 150.

The bed of the Creek is composed of a very compact trap, interspersed with quartz. The banks are chiefly a black thick loam, intermixed with a red feruginous clay. The richest claims are as usual where quartz ridges dip down into the creek, and if these claims were properly worked, I doubt not they would turn out abundance of gold. The heavy boulders of the rock make this work very laborious, and this, with the weather, may serve to account for the absence of those extraordinary yields of gold in spots which have been found in other auriferous districts.

The next diggings I came to were another ridge, and what are called the Dry Diggings. They exist in one of the many deep gullies which prevail in this region, and which there is little doubt are all more or less auriferous, as they all possess nearly the same surface indications. At the present time I have no hesitation in saying that these diggings are turning up the largest amount of gold in this district—although even here, although there is no creek running, the superabundance of water greatly interferes with the work.

Many of the claims down this gully have been worked with very considerable skill and perseverance, and consequently a rich return has awaited the diggers; still a large portion of the surface soil, which, under ordinary circumstances, would I think have paid for washing, has been thrown aside,—the object being to go deep, and generally the strata immediately above the bed rock, has been most productive. I dare say there are 200 men down in this gully, and from seeing gold brought from there yesterday, I can safely say that very nearly half that number have made during the last week £3 a day per man.

It is to be considered, too, that a very large proportion of the diggers here are rather a rough class, and very many of those who had no gold to sell frankly owned that they had not been at work, but were drinking their last week's earnings out. Making the ordinary allowances for the natural concealment of success, I should be disposed to think that the whole of the diggers in this gully are doing exceedingly well, and that the rate I have quoted (£3 a day) is very nearly the uniform return to the steady, hard-working digger.

Passing down the "dry diggings," I came to Oakenville Creek, which has also established for itself a name and reputation amongst those diggings.

The Oakenville Creek is in this season a narrow and rapid rush of water down the bed of a deep and precipitous rocky gully; and here again the diggers are much incommoded with the flush of water, although a considerable number are at work, and judging from their returns the yield must be very fair. I heard few complaints, for the diggers are at least a tolerably patient race, and are content with favourable indications until the elements have allowed them to prove them fallacious. The diggings on the Creek are rapidly extending, and I have no doubt will eventually yield a very considerable amount of gold.

There are many other isolated spots at which parties are digging,—some in the plenitude of ignorance and inexperience—others who are old hands, and who are doing well, or are reported to do so, as the experienced diggers are not ever-fond of making known their discovery.

Altogether I should say there are about 500 men on the Rock, and the weekly find of gold is at least 500 ounces, which is, I think, a larger yield in proportion to the population than any other diggings at present afford. It must be remembered that a great portion of the diggers are idle and dissolute, drinking their hardly earned treasures as fast as they get them. Indeed, the frightful descriptions which have been drawn of intemperance at other diggings are fully equalled by the scenes that take place at the Rock. Sly grog shops are numerous, but a public-house has lately been opened, and another is being built, which will lessen this evil. Although the establishment of public houses in the vicinity of gold diggings is to be regretted; still they are nuisances in a less degree than the sly grog shops, as the publican is to some extent responsible for the safety of those who frequent it. There is some disposition to lawlessness and crime here, several robberies of a daring description having been recently committed. One man had £73 taken out of his pocket last week, while in a state of intoxication. There is, indeed, a bad set of men hanging about—pugilists and gamblers—who live by preying on the successful diggers.

There are several stores established at the Rock, all of which are well stocked. In fact, the place is over supplied at present, and the profits made are not large. There is a great deficiency of forage for horses, and without great care a stranger turning his horse out to graze is almost sure to lose him. I lost mine for a day and a half, though I shrewdly suspect that it was purposely put out of the way, in order that a pound might be paid for finding him again.

Until a far larger number of diggers are congregated here, it will be unfair to calculate as to the extent or richness of the Hanging Rock diggings. There are scores of creeks and gullies presenting similar indications to those which are now being successfully worked; and in some of these the gold may be deposited in greater abundance. But a small number of diggers can only gradually discover the riches of the soil. If gold is found in one spot, there the whole population rushes, and it is worked out before any attempt is made to open up new diggings. The large quantities of gold already found are, I am persuaded, only indications of still richer treasures, and I am firmly convinced, that the Hanging Rock may be considered as a permanently extensive and profitable gold field. Hitherto the season has been most unfavourable. In the bed claims on the creeks the men have only been able to work by fits and starts, continued rain and very heavy snow having prevailed throughout the winter.

It is true a very considerable number of people have left the Rock without doing any good, but this is to be accounted for without discredit to the richness of the diggings. The majority of these were men of small means, men who started for the diggings with £5 or £10, and who having exhausted their money after working a week or two unsuccessfully, were compelled to abandon the pursuit and go away. This I know to have been the case to a very great extent, and it is sure to be so, as I do not know of a single party who will hire men to work. The poor man, if unfortunate, has therefore no resource but to travel back home, or leave the Rock and take to shepherding.

There are several quartz ridges on and about the Rock, and it is generally believed by experienced miners that they will turn out rich, but they will require capital and machinery to work them. Some Turon and California diggers have visited these diggings, and returned with reports of their being worthless, but these reports ought not to be trusted. Because the indications are not the same as those displayed in the fields they have been accustomed to, is no proof whatever that they may not yield abundance of gold. Every gold field in the colony has its own distinguishing features, and both Americans and Turon men are to be found here at work, doing well, and intending to remain.

Considerable inconvenience is experienced at the Rock from the want of a post office, and one ought to be immediately established, and the mails from the Hunter should be despatched direct, and not, as at present, round by Tamworth.

If a couple of gold police could be stationed at the Rock, it would also be desirable, for though the exertions of Major Innes, the Assistant Commissioner, are untiring, and although his influence and popularity among the diggings are deservedly great, the entire absence of any police force, even for one day, is hardly safe among such a population.

The quality of the Hanging Rock gold varies a good deal, but it is in general very rich and heavy, quite as good as the Turon gold. The price paid by the dealers last week to the diggers was £3 5s. per ounce.

I am unable to state the precise number of licenses taken out on the Rock, but the total number taken out at these and the Peel River diggings is about 210.

The Peel River Diggings.

The Peel River diggings, generally known as such, are divided into two classes. The field on the western side of the river belongs to the Australian Agricultural Company, whose noble stations extend from seventy to eighty miles along the banks of this stream.

The gold field is situated about five miles from the Hanging Rock, and was discovered in March last.

Gold had been discovered on the surface by the agents of the company, and specimens were sent to the Deputy Governor of the company, Mr. Blane; but, before instructions could be received from that gentleman, a number of diggers, driven from the Hanging Rock by the severity of the weather, had settled at diggings on the eastern side of the river on land belonging to the Crown.

Attracted, however, by the richer indications on the company's land, the adventurers soon commenced operations upon it, and there being no apparent means of preventing the trespass, as a measure of expediency licenses were issued. The agents of the company were, or say they were, compelled to this step, or they would have had quietly to see the gold carried away without any permission from or return to the company at all, and when licenses were thus issued, it was hoped that they would be taken out in such numbers as would have made it remunerative to the Company.

In the month of April accordingly the company commenced the issue of licenses, but the largest number issued at any one period was thirty-six, while from one hundred and fifty to two hundred persons were at work on the ground. The claims worked by these diggers were situated at Sailor's Point and Diamond Point, and were found to be very rich; but being situated almost on the very banks of the rivers, trespassers passed and repassed with impunity, carrying the soil away under the very noses of the agents of the company. These trespassers were the origin of a long series of misunderstandings and disturbances, the narrative of which I have carefully compiled from the statement of the company's commissioner, and his assistants, from the trespassing diggers, and from the Assistant Gold Commissioner.

The Deputy Governor of the Company, finding it impossible to raise a revenue from licenses commensurate with the land worked, determined to close the mines, and accordingly on the 21st of August notices were issued, which were disseminated throughout the diggings, posted up at the stores, and wherever the diggers might be supposed to resort, that no licenses would issue after that date.

Of those who held licences there were about 12 or 13 who had claims which they had taken, but which they had not been able to work, on account of the flush of water. The holders of these claims had been allowed to work some surface claims during the time the water prevailed, and these surface diggings yielded a good return.

In the first instance the Commissioner of the Company informed the holders of these claims that they would be allowed to work them out, but that they must do so at once. There were none of these claims that could not easily have been worked out in one month, most of them in a week; but as there was no effort made to work them, and it being apparent it was the object of the holders to remain on the Company's land, the Deputy Governor of the Company came to the conclusion of closing the field, which was accordingly done on the 30th Aug., when all intruders were ordered off the Company's land, and warned that no digging would be allowed for the future.

For some days, however, numerous parties continued digging, and persisted in their resolution to do so at all risks, but by the exertions of the Company's Commissioner, by the 10th September, the ground was cleared, and there were none at work on the western side of the river.

In the mean time, the number of diggers at the Hanging Rock had very much increased from Bingera and elsewhere, while the flush of water prevented them carrying on their operations with any chance of success. These men, who had many of them been at a great loss by their adventures at Bingera, were determined to have gold from the Hanging Rock, or the Peel, if it was to be got at all, and, on the 14th September, a meeting of the diggers assembled to the number of about 300; and, having passed resolutions to the effect that if the Company would not issue licenses they would dig without them, a large mob of them proceeded over the river to the Company's ground, and stated their intention to the Company's Commissioner, firing revolvers, and using very violent and threatening language. One man, an American, called out to "Lynch" the Comissioner, but others interfered, saying, "that was not their country fashion." The men however commenced to dig and continued to do so.

The following day, the Government Assistant Gold Commissioner (Major Innes) was obliged to attend at the Hanging Rock, but on the 16th he accompanied the Company's Commissioner to the diggers, and having called them together, addressed them, telling them they were trespassing on private property, and that it would be his duty to prevent them. The diggers asked him if he had authority from the Government to protect the Company's property, arguing that the gold police was not organized to protect the gold of private persons. Major Innes assured them he had authority to afford this protection, upon which many of the more reasonable and intelligent men went away.

Still, however, a large number remained, carrying on their work with great vigour, and it is supposed from the obstinate desire still evinced to return to the Company's side, with considerable success. On the 17th September, there were no less than eighty men engaged digging, who refused to go any where ordered by the Company's Commissioner, whose party then made two prisoners. An attempt was made to rescue these prisoners, but although fire arms were again produced, and stones picked up, and very coarse language used, no actual violence was attempted.

The prisoners taken were forwarded to Tamworth, to be dealt with by the Bench, when one was discharged, no gold or tools having been found upon him, and there being no evidence of his being seen at work; the other, who was seen at work, was sentenced to pay a nominal fine, or go to gaol for two months—it being the first offence. The fine was immediately paid; but both prisoners were admonished that if again brought up, they would be very stringently dealt with.

On the 29th September, another large meeting of the diggers was held, to petition the Government to throw open the Company's diggings, it being argued that the gold was the property of the Crown, and that the Government had a right to obtain it in any way they might think proper; and this determination they communicated to the Company's Commissioner by a deputation.

On the 1st October, about 100 men assembled and, having consulted for some time, informed Mr. Rudder, the Company's Commissioner, that they were determined to work, and that if he interfered with them, they would drive their picks into his horses. They used much insulting and threatening language, but dispersed while Mr. Rudder went to collect his party together.

Since this time the trespasses on the Company's land have been principally confined to pilferings of the soil during the night time, and this has been carried on to a very considerable extent, the earth maintaining an average value of about two shillings a panfull. Many of the pilferers told me this themselves, and I have every reason to believe that this was the case.

It is not for me here to enter into any discussion of the policy or impolicy of the Company's closing their mines after having once issued licences, but there is a very strong feeling that injustice was done to those who had paid licenses during the wet season and when they were unable to work. If, however, there was some hardship to these parties, it by no means furnishes any ground for the disturbances which have taken place, as the trespassers were, to a very large extent, persons who had never worked on the Company's land at all, and who had arrived at the neighbouring diggings after the Company's mines were closed.

The presence of mind, and mingled firmness and good humour of Major Innes, in all probability alone prevented serious outrage if not bloodshed, and the discretion used by him in settling the discontented diggers on the Crown side of the river, at a reduced license fee, alone saved this field from being entirely deserted, as at Bingera. How far it will be possible for the Company to put down trespassers is a mere matter of speculation, but I am strongly of opinion that if the diggers at the Hanging Rock increase in number, and either from flood or other cause they should be unable to work successfully, they will force themselves on to the Company's land, and work it with or without permission.

At present, another disputed question between the Company and the Assistant Gold Commissioner is as to the right to work the bed of the river. This, Major Innes has given the diggers leave to do, and a party are now engaged cutting a race along the eastern bank of the river, to divert the water from the original channel, and thus enable them to work the bed.

There can be no doubt that in the Company's ground a very rich and valuable gold field exists. It is probable that it is very extensive, but this has not as yet been accurately ascertained. The alluvial diggings on the bank of the river consist principally of a thick ferruginous clay, and the gold is found very near the surface. In some instances nuggets are found clinging to the roots of the grass. But it is supposed that the greatest wealth of this field consists in its quartz ridges, of which two have been discovered. One of these has been traced a considerable distance, and the quartz is about nine inches wide. It appeared to bear gold very largely, and where it was opened on the summit of one of the ranges, 16 ounces of gold was taken out, and a number of very rich specimens, which have been sent home to the Court of Directors in London. Over these ridges, on the surface, large blocks of quartz are found, and you can scarcely pick up a lump in which specks of gold may not be seen with the naked eye. There is not near so much quartz as at Louisa Creek; but it seems to bear gold much more universally, and consequently it is anticipated it will pay better for working. I picked up several lumps of quartz as big as a duck egg, in which I could count from 5 to 20 specks of gold. It is intended to keep these ridges closed until instructions are received from the Court of Directors at home.

The river diggings on the Crown side are now occupied by about 150 diggers, but their operations are very much impeded by the quantity of water. They are at work principally on three spots, namely, Golden Point, Blackfellow's Gully and Bald Ridge. Considerable quantities of gold have been taken out of these diggings, but it must be taken that the gold sent from here includes all that which may have been pilfered from the Company's land. At present I cannot say the diggers are doing well, some of them not paying for their rations, and very few clearing more than 10s. a week. The gold is coarse and nuggetty, and of a good rich colour. Many of the experienced diggers here are confident of an improved yield as soon as the fine weather sets steadily in.

On this side the river, too, quartz ridges have been discovered, and one has been taken by a party from the Government, and it is intended to commence working it shortly.

A ridge has also been discovered in the neighbourhood by a Mr. Middleton, and that gentleman and Dr. Jenkins have put in a claim to work it. From specimens I have seen from the quartz from this ridge, I think it very rich, and likely to pay very well.

Throughout the ranges, and down the creeks in this district, gold is universally diffused in greater or less quantities, and if the digging population increases, there is every reason to believe new and rich deposits will be found to give to this auriferous region the same value and importance which attach to the western and southern diggings.

Water Police Office.—Yesterday, the notice list included runaways from the Castle Eden, Roman Emperor, and Phœnician, who had been apprehended under suspicious circumstances, by District Constable Newton, of Parramatta, and Trooper Perry, of the Mounted Police. They were all remanded until this morning. Ephraim Francis, an Asiatic, attired in an expensive and fashionable costume, was placed in the dock, charged by Constable Newton with being a runaway seaman. He proved, to the satisfaction of the bench, that he had arrived here some time since, passenger by the Empire from San Francisco, and he complained most bitterly of having been taken into custody, and thrust into a watch-house, on the mere suspicion of the apprehending constable. The latter stated that, when he accosted Francis on the Parramatta-road, on Sunday evening, he offered £1, or even £5, to be allowed to proceed on his way. Francis said, that most assuredly he did make that offer; and he would have given all the money then in his possession, upwards of £20, to have been saved from the disgrace and torture of passing a night in a filthy watch-house, and then to be paraded like a felon, next morning, through the streets of Sydney. The bench ordered him to be discharged out of custody. In the course of the morning, Captain Parfitt, commanding the screw steamer Formosa, applied for and obtained warrants against the whole of his crew, twenty-three in number, for combining (by refusing to do any more duty) to impede the progress of the voyage. They were all taken into custody, and will be brought up this morning.

Coroner's Inquest.—Yesterday, an inquest was held before the Coroner at the Museum Tavern, William-street, on view of the body of Eliza Kearns. Mr. John Howson stated that he had noticed the conduct of the deceased for the last five or six months. She was an habitual drunkard, and a woman of very indecent conduct. Since the departure of her husband, who is at sea, she has been drunk morning, noon, and night. Other witnesses corroborated Mr. Howson's statement. Dr. O'Brien stated that he had viewed the body, on which were no marks of violence; from the evidence adduced and the appearance of the body, he was of opinion that the fits with which she was seized yesterday, and which caused her death, had been produced by habits of intemperance. Verdict—Died from the effects of habits of intemperance.

Committal.—Thomas Ogle was yesterday committed by the Mayor to take his trial for stealing £3 in notes, from a box in the house of one Basil Blanch. Circumstances of suspicion transpired which led to Ogle being given into custody, when he had in his possession a few shillings over £3; the prosecutor could not identify any of the money, but a handkerchief found with the prisoner, and which he had not missed, he swore to as his property, and which must have been stolen at the same time with the money.

Larceny.—Elizabeth Smith, in the service of Mrs. Driscoll, of Crown-street, Woolloomooloo, on Saturday afternoon, had to carry home a bundle containing fourteen yards of carpeting. When near St Mary's, Hyde Park, she became fatigued, and sat down for temporary rest. In a few minutes she got up to persue her homeward jouney, when to her consternation she found that while she was taking breath her load had been carried away, but not home. From information she received on the spot, there is reason to believe that the parcel was stolen by two boys.

House Robbery.—Between the hours of seven and eight on Saturday evening, the residence of Mr. James Olliver, of Waterloo-street, Chippendale, was feloniously entered and robbed. Mrs. Olliver was the only person in the house at the time, who on hearing a noise for which she could not account, went about to ascertain the cause, and was just in time to see a man leaving the premises from the back door (where the entrance had been effected.) On making an examination of the premises, Mrs. Olliver found that a box had been broken open, from which had been taken seventeen £1 notes, two sovereigns, eight crown pieces, one pair of sheets, and one silver watch. The fellow who was seen making his escape was of about 5 feet 8 or 9 inches in height, with sandy whiskers round his face, and wore a California hat, with blue shirt and belt.

The Infirmary and Dispensary.—The executors of the late Mr. Gosling have paid to Thomas Woolley, Esq., Treasurer, the sum of £10, being a donation left by that gentleman for the use of the Infirmary and Dispensary. Mr. John Moreing has also remitted through the Rev. Dr. M'Garvie, Secretary, a donation of £20 for the same Institutions.

Stealing a Cheque.—The men Harry Marks and Isaac Studwick, who were privately brought into custody on Saturday, charged with stealing a cheque the property of Mr. Martyn, and remanded, were yesterday brought before the Police Magistrate in open Court, with James Grubin, apprehended on Saturday as a party implicated in the same offence. The prisoners were all in the employ of the prosecutor. Three witnesses were examined, and the prisoners were remanded until to-day for further evidence. Mr. Nichols appeared on behalf of the prisoner Grubin.

Immigrants per Kate and Irene.—With the exception of a few invalids, the whole of the immigrants by these ships have been readily engaged. The single women have obtained excellent situations at from £18 to £25 a year; the single men at about £26; and the married people at £35 a year. In the case of the Irene's draft, the expectations of some of the married people were so ridiculously extravagant, that employers here declined to attempt making any arrangement with them. They were, therefore, forwarded to Maitland, where, more rational notions having been entertained by them, they have entered into comfortable situations. By a private letter from London, the immigration agent has learnt that, in addition to the John Gray and Ontario, which had sailed, with emigrants, from Liverpool, five other emigrant ships, the Hydaspes, America, Wilson Kennedy, Humboldt, and Rattler, had been taken up for New South Wales (the America being laid on direct for Moreton Bay). The same letter states that tenders for an eighth ship had been called for, whose point of disembarkation was to be Port Stephens.

Watkins and Dean sell by auction, this day, at the residence of Mr. Gillespie, 629, Lower George-street, at ten o'clock precisely, household and shop furniture, baker's implements, carts, dray, horse, gig, and harness. At 12 o'clock precisely, 15 tons fine baker's flour, and 5 tons superior seconds.

BRAIDWOOD.

October 19.—I am again seated to open my weekly budget, but I am afraid it will be rather scant. In Van Troil's History of Iceland, there is a chapter which professes to treat of the snakes in that island, but the curious reader, on turning to that part of the volume, would be rather surprised to find the chapter consisted of this one sentence, "There are no snakes in Iceland." I confess I have thought lately whether I am not likely to be in the same predicament as the historian aforesaid, and whether the reader who may cast his eye over my contributions may not find that the weekly account of "Braidwood news" contains, in fact "no news from Braidwood." Well, "no news is good news" sometimes, and at anyrate we have had no grievous disasters to relate no outbreaks of violence have taken place among us, nothing of a shocking or terrible nature has occurred. We have pursued "the even tenor of our way," and such monotony we do not wish to see relieved, even by the splendid discovery of a Mount Alexander, associated with its discomfort and its demoralization. And we have not yet been obliged to strike the funeral knell of our diggings. Our numbers certainly have somewhat diminished during the last four or five months; but they have never sunk below 500, and there has been always sufficient life and energy to remind us we are in the vicinity of a gold field. And then as to the success, it has not been such that a thousand tongues have been ready to trumpet it forth; we have no fortunes made in a day, but we have had returns large enough to render gold digging a very profitable employment. My own opinion has always been, that the Southern Gold Fields have yielded returns, not so splendid indeed as some other districts, but more steady than any. Our golden crop has never failed yet, and who can guess at the day when it will? We have then no bad news to tell, and our prospects are brightening. The reaction that we long ago predicted would take place, is beginning now to work, and we feel the benefit. Our numbers are increasing. We do not at present find this in reference to the licenses actually issued, as many have not yet settled themselves to work; but new comers are almost daily arriving, and we are constantly hearing of more on their way. The new diggings at Bell's Paddock are still turning out very well. From 25 to 30 ounces have been obtained in a week. About 280 licenses are issued, and at Bell's Creek (including Araluen) some 160 more. About 50 or 60 are at work on the Honeysuckle Flat, and sometimes turn out their 4 or 5 ounces a day. Spring Creek, a tributary of Major's Creek, is also a profitable spot. The report respecting Charleyong, on the Mongarlow River, has not been confirmed. There is nothing, at any rate, to pay for regular working.

21st.—Nothing particular has transpired since our last date. New comers are still flocking in, some of them having returned from Victoria. At the Mongarlow, 60 licenses have been issued. Araluen has become a favourite resort again. Profitable work is done by sluicing. At Major's Creek some are still very successful, in one case 9 ounces having been washed in one day. Bell's Paddock is still all that could be desired, the returns in some cases being even larger than those I have mentioned above. Gold is selling at the high price of £3 5s. Messrs. Broughton and Douglas are at present on leave of absence, and it is supposed will not return unless our numbers very considerably increase. We have much pleasure in bearing witness to the zeal and assiduity with which these gentlemen performed their duties. Messrs King and Massie are now our only Commissioners. I think I forgot to mention that the Roman Catholic body have erected a very commodious tent at Major's Creek.

I heard the other day from a gentleman who had received private letters from America, that we might soon expect an emigration from Nova Scotia, and, accordingly, I find a vessel from Halifax had arrived at Melbourne, and another was soon to follow; that we are attracting visitors from all quarters, and are becoming in some measure, the cynosure to the world. The inhabitants of Nova Scotia are known to be for the most part of Scotch extraction. By the way, I hear the maligned Isle of Skye men are capital railway labourers. Cases sometimes occur, (I know of one the other day,) in which successful diggers send remittances to their friends at home. We hint this as indeed a most favourable "sign of the times." I could dwell with intense delight on the very interesting ceremonies attending the inauguration of the Sydney University. It must have been a proud and a happy day for the honourable and learned member for Sydney to whom the merit of originating the noble design undoubtedly belongs. The spacious hall in which the interesting ceremony was performed has been in some measure already identified with the advancement of sound education, but now it is doubly sacred to the cause of literature and science. The noble tree which has flourished so brilliantly in the father land, has now been transplanted to the fair land of Australia: may it be evident that here is a genial soil! It is true Australia has no past; but future generations shall delight to dwell on her history, and if hitherto all has been a blank, at least the era of our solid advancement, our "golden age," shall be dated from the inauguration of our university.

CONGREGATIONAL MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

(Abridged from the Maitland Mercury.)

On Sunday last sermons in aid of the above society were preached in the Congregational Church, West Maitland, by the Rev. J. Beazley, of Sydney.

On Monday evening a public meeting in aid of the same object was held in the church, G. A. Lloyd, Esq. taking the chair, on the motion of the Rev. J. T. Waraker, seconded by Mr. W. P. Peek.

Prayer having been offered by the Rev. J. Beazley,

The Chairman addressed the meeting in explanation of the objects of these anniversary services and meetings. Referring back to the period when he was a resident of the Hunter River, he contrasted the destitute state of the district then, as regarded ministers and churches, with what it happily is now. Congratulating them on their finding the ministry of the Rev. Mr. Waraker so acceptable, he reminded the meeting that there were still many and increasing claims on the Congregational Missionary Society, which sent him out to the colony. Great and increasing as those claims were already in the colony for the establishment of additional ministers and the erection of additional churches, they must now rapidly increase under the spur of the immense immigration to these colonies consequent on the gold discoveries, the beginning of which they already saw. Having forcibly depicted the religious destitution this would cause unless efforts were made to meet it commensurate with the necessity, he urged on all present the duty of doing all they could to further these efforts.

The Rev. J. T. WARAKER would mention, before proceeding further, that the Rev. Mr. [illegible] had sent word that he was prevented from attending by ill health, and other circumstances also prevented other valuable friends from attending. The Rev. J. Beazley would be unable to remain to attend the services the next day (Tuesday).

The Rev. J. B. LAUGHTON moved the first resolution, as follows:—

> That at this eventful and interesting era in the history of this colony, when vast numbers may be expected to add to its present population, and when important changes of a social and political character are foreshadowing themselves, it is in an especial manner the duty of Christians to be active and zealous in the diffusion of divine truth, as the best preventive of anticipated evils, and the sure promoter of that righteousness which exalteth a nation.

Mr. RANDOLPH NOTT seconded the resolution. He had just come down overland from Brisbane to Maitland, on his way to Sydney, and he described to the meeting what had struck him with most surprise and astonishment, the number of busy, thriving townships and villages without any, or with very uncertain, means of worshipping God in public. Brisbane he found fairly provided, and Maitland, but in none of the other townships he passed a Sunday in could he enter a place of worship, till he came within 60 miles of Maitland, for in the few where any existed they were closed on the days he happened to be there. He entreated them to come forward heartily and aid the society, of which he was the Sydney secretary, to do something towards removing this unhappy state of things. That society, he was happy to inform them, had already sent for two ministers to be sent out, and he trusted that when they came the inhabitants of this favoured district, who knew and appreciated the happiness of enjoying regular ministrations among them, would lend a generous helping hand towards establishing the ministers in those destitute districts where of course at first a minister could obtain little for his support.

The resolution was put and carried unanimously.

The Rev. S. RABONE moved the second resolution, as follows:—

> That the spirit of the Gospel requires the cordial co-operation of all Christian denominations in extending its benign influences; and that such co-operation is highly important as tending to remove those unhappy prejudices and misconceptions of the nature of Christianity which have been fostered so widely and so long by the spirit of partisanship and exclusiveness.

Mr. PEEK seconded the resolution.

The resolution was put and carried.

The Rev. J. BEAZLEY moved the third resolution, as follows:—

> That all our efforts to diffuse the Gospel have the happiest effect on the minds and characters of those who make them.

He congratulated his hearers that they lived in times when they could never, go to what place of worship they would, pass any long time without being urged to active exertion in the cause of Christ; in an age when the original missionary spirit of Christianity was once more brought into full operation. How different from the Christian world a century since, when Christian ministers might indeed be profound theologians, acute philosophers, admirable logicians, but when they as a body failed to understand and to convey the true expanding living spirit of Christianity. He always took part in missionary meetings with peculiar pleasure, for there, above all, Christians forgot self, and strove only to advance the knowledge of God. But it was a beautiful provision of God's mercy that there, as in all the other relations of life, active exertion in itself produced happiness; so that the most laborious and disinterested efforts for the happiness of others produced the highest happiness in him who made them. He showed how this grand principle, of active exertion and happiness being coexistent, extended through all nature; how they found it inculcated throughout the scriptures, the angels being described as transcendantly active and transcendantly happy; and God himself being described by our Saviour as "working." But in another way, besides the pure happiness of mind and body ever induced by active exertion, did the Christian engaged in actively spreading the knowledge of God experience a vast increase to his happiness; he alone who did so engage and devote himself comprehended fully the full spirit of Christianity, to him alone did it appear in its rich coloring. The very act of teaching the child, the ignorant man, the heathen, the truths of the Gospel, taught and enlightened the teacher; and he gradually became far more thoroughly versed in the real life of Christianity than any amount of meditation, of ordinary worship, could have made him. He urged them all to take, each in their sphere, this truth to their hearts, and act upon it in their lives.

Mr. R. JONES seconded the resolution, and was happy thus to bear his testimony also to the fact that there were no differences existing between different denominations of Christians that would not allow them to unite cordially together in spreading the knowledge of the Gospel.

The resolution was put and carried.

The Rev. J. T. WARAKER had been greatly gratified by the whole proceedings of the meeting, and had now only to propose one more resolution, which was a vote of thanks to the Chairman.

Mr. NOTT seconded the resolution, which was carried unanimously, and duly acknowledged by Mr. Lloyd.

The doxology having been sung, and the benediction pronounced by the Rev. Mr. Waraker, the meeting separated, a collection being made at the door, amounting with Sunday's collections to £34.

TESTIMONIAL TO MR. WARAKER.

A number of the members of the congregation remained after the public meeting had separated, to be present at the presentation of a testimonial to the Rev. J. T. Waraker. Mr. W. P. Peek, on the part of the congregation, presented to Mr. Waraker a purse containing fifty sovereigns, as a testimonial of their esteem and gratitude for his ministerial services among them during the past twelve months. The Rev. Mr. Waraker thanked his friends for their kindness—not the slightest intimation of this particular expression of it having reached him, otherwise he might have acknowledged it in better terms. He devoutly wished that spiritual results might accompany his labours among them, so that he might enjoy the still higher satisfaction of seeing not a few give themselves to God, and a church of the faithful built up in the place where they worshipped.

FIRST COLLIER STEAMER.—We announced on Saturday, in a short paragraph, the arrival in the river on that day of the first collier steamer, the John Bowes, and in the course of the day we paid a visit to the vessel, where she lay discharging in the Poplar New Dock. As this is the first attempt to supply coals to the metropolis through the medium of steam navigation, some particulars of the pioneer of the route may be interesting. The John Bowes is a long narrow steamer, narrow, at least, for her breadth; her length of keel is 140 feet, with a considerable rake both forward and aft; extreme breadth, 25 feet 6 inches; depth of hold, 17 feet 3 inches; draught of water with 580 tons of coals on board, 13 feet; this, however, was not a full cargo, the vessel on her first voyage being somewhat out of trim. It is calculated that when properly trimmed his average cargo will be 600 tons. She is rigged as a three-masted brigantine, with square sails on the foremast; worked by a screw, with an engine of 70 horse-power, but which can be worked up to 210. She made the passage from Newcastle to London in 48 hours, but the engine, being new, was only worked at little more than half-speed. Forty hours, it is considered, will be the average passage, and her average rate eight knots per hour; it only reached six on her first passage. The quantity of coals consumed was not quite eight tons. The vessel is open through her whole length, where the cargo comes, except gangways; this gives her the advantage of taking in her coals without the necessity of resorting to coal trimmers, as the vessel is hauled forward or aft under the shoots as required; this will of course be a considerable saving both of time and expense in loading. The time required for her discharge is estimated at two days, being worked out by the hydraulic engine. Her crew consists of seven men, exclusive of engineers, firemen, &c., say in all 12 hands, including the master. Such are the particulars of the vessel. As we anticipated, the John Bowes cleared out on Saturday, and passed Gravesend yesterday on her return voyage. It would be premature to make any observations on this undertaking at present.—Shipping Gazette.

TRADITIONS FROM REMOTE PERIODS THROUGH FEW HANDS.—In 1781, and my eleventh year, a school-fellow took me to see his great grand mother, a Mrs. Arthur, in Limerick, then aged 108 years, whose recollection of that city's siege in 1691, when she was eighteen, was perfectly fresh and unimpaired, as, indeed, she was fond of showing by frequent and even unsolicited recurrence to its dread scenes, in which the women, history tells us, fearlessly participated. We are here then presented with an interval of 160 years, between a memorable event and my recollection of its narrative by a person engaged in it. The old lady's family had furnished a greater number of Chief Magistrates in Limerick than any other recorded in its annals. Again, in 1784, on a visit to my grandfather in the county of Limerick, during a school vacation, I heard him, then in his 86th year, say, that in 1714, on the accession to the British Throne of the present Royal dynasty, he heard in Cork, where he was at school, a conversation between several gentlemen on this change of the reigning family, when one of them, a Mr. Martin, said that he was born the same day as Charles II., on the 29th May, 1631, and was present at the execution of Charles I., on the 29th January, 1649. His family then resided in London, where he joined Cromwell's Ironsides, and thence accompanied them to Ireland. The transfer to him of some forfeited property naturally induced him to settle there. Thus between me and the eye witness of the regicidal catastrophe, only one person intervenes. In 1830 there died, in London, at the eastern extremity called the World's End, an Irishman, aged 111 years, named Gibson, whose father, a Scotchman, he told me, served under the Duke of Monmouth, at the battle of Sedgmoor, in July, 1685, and afterwards, in July, 1690, under William, at the Boyne. Supposing, as we well may, the father to have been born about 1660, in 1830, before the son's decease, the two successive lives thus embrace 170 years. I had rendered the son some services, which made him very communicative to me. The father married, and settled in Tipperary, where he became a Roman Catholic, and no adherent of O'Connell could be more ardent it this cause than the son. This veteran had served full 70 years in the Royal Navy.—Notes and Queries.

SNOOKS.—The name of "Snooks," so generally associated with vulgarity, is only a corruption, or rather a contraction, of the more dignified name of Sevenoaks. This town is generally called Se'noaks, in Kent; and the further contraction, coupled with the phonetic spelling of former days, easily passed into S'nooks. This is no imaginary conclusion; for I am told by a trustworthy friend, that Messrs. Sharp and Harrison, solicitors, Southampton, have recently had in their possession a series of deeds in which all the modes of spelling occur from Sevenoaks down to S'nokes, in connection with a family now known as Snooks.

There is a very common mistake in Scotland made in keeping sweet butter, namely, in water. This very quickly injures the flavour of it, making it tasteless and insipid. It should be kept in a cool, airy place, but perfectly dry. The making up of butter for table in small fancy shapes, placed in a crystal dish, floating in water, is pretty to the eye; but the eye is pleased at the expense of the palate. When butter is made up in this form, and kept for two or three days in water, the flavour is sensibly affected, and the butter pronounced not good. Butter of the best quality will always be more or less injured by such treatment.—North British Agriculturist.
